Ownership of local hospitals transfers from St. Joseph's to local health board

by MARTHA PERKINS
Editor

After acting as "midwife" for the past 12 years, a representative of the Sisters of St. Joseph's was happy to be present at the birth of a new era of providing healthcare services in Haliburton County.

On Friday afternoon, Sister Hilda Maloney signed all the necessary documents for St. Joseph's to relinquish ownership of the Haliburton and Minden hospitals, and to pass the torch – for the fee of $1 – to Haliburton Highlands Health Services Inc.

Some people light-heartedly took the smile on her face to be relief, because as the Sisters and St. Joseph's Health Centre discovered, running the two smallest hospitals in the province is not an easy task.

"It was not all dancing in the light," she smiled during the speech-making part of the ceremonies at PineStone. With sincere hopes and prayers, she says that as the board moves forward, perhaps hesitantly at first, it will grow confident in its abilities.

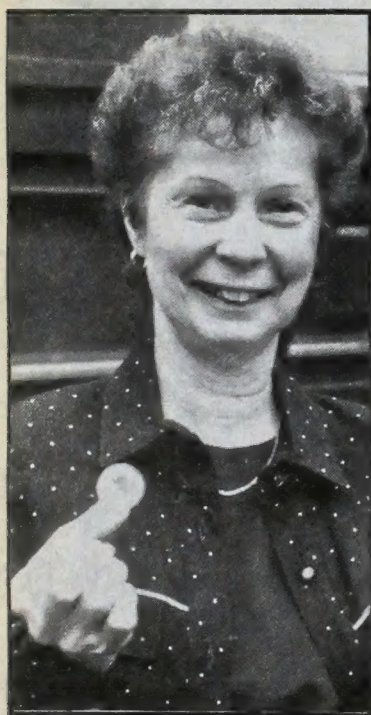

As the Sisters, who are based in Peterborough, have learned during their association with Haliburton County's dedicated representatives on the hospital board, the people here "survive no matter what. When you believe in your mission, you start with the notion that failure is not an option."

But should the local board need some help over the next few years, she reminded them "we're as close as the Internet."

Meanwhile, the HHHS board and other dignitaries praised the Sisters and St. Joseph's hospital for taking over responsibility back in 1984, when the Red Cross got out of the hospital business and no one else wanted the Minden and Haliburton facilities.

"We would like to thank you for your commitment to our

MNR issues warning on fires

by JODY LINDBECK
Staff Reporter

A fire which came within a few feet of destroying two Black Lake cottages is believed to have been started by an incinerator.

The fire broke out about 1:30 p.m. last Wednesday near a cottage which had been undergoing renovations.

Construction workers noticed the fire, which is believed to have jumped from the incinerator and into the woods, and began fighting it with implements they had on hand, including a rake and a broom.

The men were able to stop the fire burning either of two nearby cottages, although they were unable to stop it spreading up a hill and into the woods.

Firefighters from the Ministry of Natural Resources and Norland Fire Department were called in to fight the blaze.

The blaze was brought under

WALKING FOR WATER: The weather was perfect for HAVE's annual Walk for Water, as Jaime Bilodeau, Aleka Lilius and Katherine Hagerman discovered. The 16km walk part way along Lake Kashagawigamog raises money for well in countries such as India, where water is a precious resource.

LIFE SAVER

*Shawn Hagerman uses
CPR to save the life of a former Tory Hill resident*

by MARTHA PERKINS
Editor

A 71-year-old former resident of Tory Hill discovered he had a very special kind of life insurance policy with Shawn Hagerman last Wednesday night.

But instead of Lucien Plante's family being the beneficiaries after his death, they are thanking Hagerman for giving them a few more years of savouring Plante's life.

In a story full of ironies, Hagerman was in Lindsay selling life insurance when he decided to have dinner at Pizza Hut. A short time earlier, Plante and his wife Louise had also arrived for a quiet dinner after rushing around all day. The closing date of the sale of their home in Tory Hill was Friday, and there were dozens of odds and ends to tie up before being completely moved into their new apartment in Lindsay.

Usually, Wednesday night found Hagerman teaching aerobics in Haliburton, and he hadn't missed a night in six months. But business called him away and he was just taking a break between appointments.

To qualify as an aerobics instructor, you have to pass a CPR course and keep your certification current. Six weeks earlier, Hagerman had taken the refresher course with Cathy Salvatori, so when a waitress rushed in to the dining area to ask if anyone was a doctor, Hagerman said no, but he was trained in CPR. She led him outside to where Plante had passed out and dropped unconscious.

Plante has asthma and Multiple Sclerosis, which primarily affects his throat and legs. Eating a meal usually takes an hour because he must eat slowly, with small portions. He had just finished his pizza when he started to cough, says his daughter, Judy Lenart of Oshawa. "He didn't like doing that at the table because it would bother other people so he got up to go to the washroom. But he swears they moved the washroom because he couldn't find it and he went outside instead."

Caution is advised when people with pacemakers are using cellular phones

There is some experimental data suggesting that close contact between a digital cellular phone and a pacemaker can speed up or slow down the pacemaker. The Heart and Stroke Foundation advises that the risk to pacemaker recipients can be significantly reduced if simple precautions are taken.

HERE, THERE & EVERYWHERE

News about people and events in Haliburton County

These include: Don't use your phone on the same side as your pacemaker unit; don't carry your phone in your breast pocket or on your belt; hold the cellular phone at least six inches away from your pacemaker; and if while using your cellular phone you begin to feel faint or dizzy, immediately turn off your phone. If you have any questions, call the Foundation's health-line at 1-800-360-1557.

Congratulations to Uwaya Erdmann (who many remember as Deborah Dahlke), one of two recipients of the Professor Gilbert Bagnani Medals for top marks in the general undergraduate program at Trent University. The former Harcourt resident is continuing her studies in medicine and her former co-workers at The Echo wish her well.

In last week's Business Briefs we mentioned that Jody and Peter Curry own the Ethel Curry Gallery in Haliburton. We're sorry we forgot to say that Wayne Hooks of Drag Lake is also an owners.

Everyone is welcome to the First Annual Meeting of Family Services of Haliburton County on June 12 in the Kinmount Room at PineStone. The guest speaker is Betty McLeod of the Rainy River District Child and Family Services on their experience integrating children's services. There will also be an election for Board of Directors, a report on the status of children's services in the Highlands, proposed by-laws and a financial report. Man killed in fire was a long-time camper

by PETER DOWNS
Staff Reporter

The man killed two weekends ago in a trailer fire at Haliburton Forest was a long-time camper who escaped to his Lake Bivouac retreat whenever he could, say staff who knew him.

Police have positively identified the fire victim as 54-year-old Douglas Hofland of Lefroy, a small village on Lake Simcoe.

Shirley Letourneau, who works in the office at Haliburton Forest, got to know Hofland during the many years he had leased a site there for his trailer.

"It was his haven — a place for him to escape to," she said.

Haliburton Forest owner Peter Schleifenbaum said Hofland was "a real outdoorsman," who enjoyed spending time at his trailer with family during all seasons.

He liked to get together with others who lease sites at the Forest and organized a Canada Day celebration for families, said Letourneau.

"He had a lot of friends," she said. "He'll be missed."

Hofland was a volunteer firefighter with the Innisville Fire Department, said family friend Jean Acheson of Maynooth.

He owned an Arctic Cat snowmobile dealership and raced snowmobiles "for many, many years".

"He was a fantastic person. Very honest. A good businessman," Acheson said.

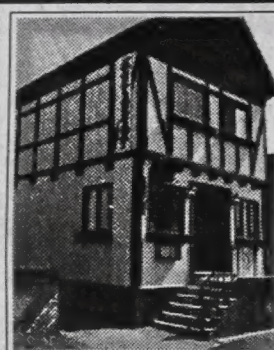

Dysart firefighters found Hofland's badly burned body on the ground outside his trailer when they arrived to battle the blaze at about 2 a.m. on May 26.

Minden OPP say it's uncertain whether Hofland was able to exit the burning trailer before he died or if an explosion may have thrown him outside. People nearby reported hearing "some bangs like an explosion" at the time of the fire, which could have been a propane tank, said Constable Ron Buchanan.

After the fire was extinguished, firefighters found the body of Hofland's dog inside the trailer under a bed.

The Ontario Fire Marshall's Office was unable to determine what caused the fire.

Police say foul play is not suspected.

Board honours award-winning teacher

by PETER DOWNS
Staff Reporter

Haliburton's school board has commended Minden teacher Helen Newton for winning a prestigious TVO teaching award.

Mrs. Newton, who has taught primary students at Archie Stouffer Elementary School for the past 26 years, was selected to receive one of three TVOntario Teaching Awards from a long list of teachers across the province.

Students in her Grade 3 class, their families and the people who nominated her for the award, including her daughter, sat in the audience at the library at ASES as board members congratulated Mrs. Newton for her achievement last Tuesday night.

"I think it's so wonderful when you think of the number of teachers in Ontario that a teacher from our little board of Haliburton County won this award," said board chairwoman Wendy Ladurantaye.

"We just want to say we're so proud of you. You make a wonderful addition to our schools."

Students in Mrs. Newton's

class presented her with a bouquet of flowers and told her they are proud of her recognition.

Mrs. Newton gave credit to the children in her class for helping make her win possible. The whole group works as a team, she said.

"They're really as excited about this as I am ... When I came into the class and told them I won the award they said, 'We won!'"

She said the board is fortunate to have many talented and dedicated teachers.

"I really appreciate the opportunity to represent the teachers of Haliburton County," she said. "Every teacher in our board deserves the recognition I've been getting the past month."

Mrs. Newton also thanked superintendent of education Dale Robinson, who was one of the three people who nominated her for the award, for putting up with her over the years.

"I've sort of given him a hard time," she said.

Mrs. Newton was granted the award, in part, for the creative and innovative lessons she has been able to deliver in the classroom using computers.

PROUD STUDENTS: Teacher Helen Newton is surrounded by her Grade 3 students who presented her with a bouquet of flowers during a special board meeting last week. Trustees commended the Archie Stouffer Elementary School teacher for the recent award she won from TVO.

This week TVO camera crews will be at ASES to film Mrs. Newton's class in action for an upcoming TV special.

Then at a reception in Toronto on June 13, she will accept her award, including a plaque, a $1,000 cheque for herself and a cheque for the same amount to be used by her school for educational materials.

"I think we've got some great secrets in our board and now the whole of Ontario is going to know what we've known," said

TREE HUGGERS: Scott Smith, left, and Jason Chambers have a firm grasp on this tree - the first step in the life-saving program.

Hug a tree when lost in woods

by JODY LINDBECK
Staff Reporter

Hugging a tree might sound like a comforting gesture for a lost child, but it is in fact far more than that - it could save the life of a missing youngster.

"Stop and hug a tree" is the first in a series of guidelines aimed at teaching children what to do if they become lost, particularly in the bush.

Haliburton County Search and Rescue personnel took their message to J. Douglas Hodgson Elementary School last week. The children were told when they initially realize they are lost, it is time to stop and hug a tree.

In other words, relax, do not try to walk out of the woods, stay together when travelling with other people and stay in the one spot.

The children were told to keep their "hugged" tree in their sights at all times.

The second step is to "zip up", or tuck pants into socks, put your hands into gloves, sleeves or pockets, stay warm and dry, and cover hers with hats, hoods or pine branches.

Thirdly, the children were told to find a home.

In this phase they are taught to build a simple shelter from branches or leaves, make a windbreak, tuck up like a ball to retain body heat and to eat food from their pockets if it's available, but not to eat or drink anything from their surroundings.

The final phase is to get found.

The children were told they needed to leave signs for searchers, mess up their "yard" by emptying their pockets onto the ground and into trees, turning over or piling up rocks and sticks and rustling up leaves.

They should also stay out of the rain, keep on all warm clothing, never lose sight of their shelter and answer searchers by shouting.

Mostly importantly, the children are told to always tell someone where they are going, stay on the trails and travel with others.

Transfer of hospitals' ownership only the beginning communities," said board chairman Paul Heffer. "Without your support (when the Red Cross divested ownership), I'm sure these facilities would not have remained open."

MPP Chris Hodgson also appreciated St. Joseph's "patience, help and guidance," as well as that of the District Health Council, which has helped to steer the board's path, sometimes through choppy political waters. As vice-chairman of the HHHS's previous incarnation, he knows full well the joys and tribulations of providing quality health services.

"We've waited a long time for this day," he said.

Hodgson joined others in remarking the ownership of the hospitals by a locally-governed board is just a first step. "Keep your eye on the vision that what you're doing is worthwhile to the community..."

HISTORICAL MOMENT: Members of the Haliburton Highlands Health Services Board look on while Sister Hilda Maloney and chairman Paul Heffer sign the necessary documents at PineStone on Friday.

"This board is challenged with doing a pilot project for the whole province. I remind you there's quite a bit of work ahead... Healthcare will build an infrastructure for attracting more people to live here and creating more construction jobs."

Heffer thanked Hodgson for his personal commitment to the process. "This in no small part has been due to the efforts of Chris Hodgson," he said.

On behalf of St. Joseph's board, former chair Mel Johnson wished the Haliburton board well with its new responsibilities.

"We do really hope that providing services to the communities are successful, as I know they will be."

He also extended greetings from a holidaying executive director, Frank Lussing, whom Johnson says has put a lot of personal effort into the hospitals.

Bill James, chair of the District Health Council, told the board "you have made a very good choice in executive director (Foster Loucks). We will have some interesting times but I'm sure you're on the right track and will be successful in your endeavours."

Dr. Norm Bottum, who was elected by his peers as president of the medical staff, also thanked the Sisters and staff of St. Joseph's for their assistance and support over the past few years. "A better partner I don't think we could have had."

Other people who were praised were Minden and Haliburton's representatives on the St. Joseph's board - the late Helen Johnson, Bill Kulas, Doug Campbell, Rheta Jones, Barbara Dawson, Hadden Gillespie, Stuart Baker; past and present local board members, especially Stuart Baker, HHHS's first chairman; and Betty Russell, Loucks' assistant.

Welcomed on board were the county's two representatives, Glamorgan Reeve Elva Bates and Sherborne et al Reeve Ross Rabjohn; Somerville Reeve John Huke, representing the northern townships of Victoria and Peterborough counties; and Dr. Bottum.

Funding still there

Many people ask whether the government is still committed to the next phase of improving healthcare services in Haliburton County - building a 30-bed long-term care unit at Haliburton Hospital, transferring emergency services in Minden to the Hyland Crest site and upgrading Hyland Crest.

"People need to rest assured the government of Ontario will be there," MPP Chris Hodgson said Friday before reading a letter from the Minister of Health, Jim Wilson.

Wilson writes: "It is my pleasure today to reconfirm the Ministry of Health's funding commitment of up to $6.5-million on a total project cost of $10.6-million for the capital redevelopment..."

"I appreciate the dedication and hard work of the District Health Council, board members, staff, volunteers and many people in the community in moving this project forward. I encourage all participants to continue working with Ministry staff to ensure a smooth and speedy implementation of the hospital's redevelopment."

An optimistic view would have sod turning taking place this fall. Perhaps a realistic one is it occurring next spring.

Work is underway on the master plan. It should be completed before summer's end.

Partnership threatened

Newly formed Family Services of Haliburton County prepares for the worst

by MARTHA PERKINS
Editor

After investing tens of thousands of dollars and countless volunteer hours in the amalgamation of children's services in Haliburton County, the board overseeing the process is afraid the province is going to let it all fall apart.

The Children's Aid Society is the linchpin of the newly formed Family Services of Haliburton County, and that pin may soon be pulled out, causing the whole process to fall apart.

Amalgamation revolves around the transfer of responsibility usually vested in the Children's Aid Society. Without a child welfare designation, and therefore authority over local CAS services, joining the remaining services together is not feasible or practical.

The Ministry of Community and Social Services has not made a formal announcement, but the family services board has heard it should prepare for the worst.

"At this point there's some danger the whole goal may be lost," says project manager Frances Adams. "The (ministry's) area office has the impression the decision will be negative."

The Peterborough/Victoria CAS still firmly supports amalgamation, says board member Bev Muir, and indeed, it's been one of the key players since the process began several years ago.

An amalgamated service would be more inclusive, she says, because all services will be managed by a single body, which is more aware of local needs. It would provide "one-stop" service access.

Family services board member Jane van Nood has ample proof of why such a change is needed. When her twin sons were born with special needs, each agency required her to fill out their own forms. Since several agencies offered services the family required, she had to outline the same information every time. Because confidentially laws to not allow agencies cannot share information, at one point she had to drive back to Haliburton from a hospital in the city just to do some paperwork.

"It causes a lot of stress for parents who are already dealing with children who have problems," she says.

The proposed amalgamation includes CAS, Kinark Child and Family Services, including the Infant Development Program, Case Co-ordination, Access to Integration and Parent Support Services. There is the possibility of other agencies joining on in

"At this point there's some danger the whole goal may be lost. The ministry's area office has the impression the decision will be negative."

-- Project manager Frances Adams

the future.

When coming up with a plan for amalgamation, the board considered whether it should take over responsibility for these services or simply "broker" them, using overall budget dollars to buy services from existing agencies. But the board concluded this would simply add another layer of bureaucracy and would defeat the whole purpose of amalgamation.

"Our board is committed to families and children who want single access rather than travelling all over to get services piecemeal," says board treasurer Gord Schakelaar.

Improving service by having it all under one organization is the main goal, and while there may be cost savings, the board wants existing dollars to remain the same so it can enhance what's already available.

So far, the process has cost the provincial government more than $100,000 — money the government didn't mind spending because it's given its approval all the way along. Whether it's a change of government or a change of heart, the board doesn't know why the province is now getting cold feet.

One suggestion is that under amalgamation, Haliburton County would have the smallest CAS service in the province, and that goes against the province's push towards larger boards. Apparently there's also a concern that demand for services will increase.

"The majority of CAS case-loads are repeats and that says to us there needs to be a different type of follow-up," says Adams, but whether that means increased clientele is debatable.

The board's president, Cathy Reid, says that if the province puts an end to the amalgamation, it's going against what's best for the county's families. "If this is what the community wants, it should be what the community has."

As one of county council's representatives on the board, Stanhope deputy-reeve Eleanor Harrison is concerned that if amalgamation is stopped, then local agencies may be amalgamated into much larger boards covering a large geographic area. "We could end up being governed by a board in Peterborough. You may have one person from here on the board," resulting in a lack of representation because of the county's low population.

The board hopes the community is prepared to support the amalgamation process by voicing concerns to MPP Chris Hodgson and Dave Tsubouchi. Hodgson's address is 2 King Street, Lindsay, Ont. K9V 1C5 or fax 705-324-6938. Tsubouchi's address is Hepburn Block, 80 Grosvenor St., 6th floor, Toronto, M7A 1E9 or fax 416-325-5221.

Glamorgan debates fire dep't spending before passing overall budget with no increase

by JODY LINDBECK
Staff Reporter

The fire department's budget dominated a special meeting of the Glamorgan council last week.

Fire chief Doug Bates said he had been asked to cut his department's budget by $1,200, which he felt he had done.

However, councillors Chuck Viner and Tom Vos argued the budget should be cut further because the previous budget had included a one-time $5000 computer purchase.

Bates and Viner clashed loudly several times as council discussed reducing the budget.

Councillors eventually resolved to cut $2000 from the training allocation.

Vos said if the fire department wanted to attend conferences or schools during the year, the matter could be brought before council.

Viner said council had never said no to a reasonable request to attend a conference or training seminar.

Viner and Vos also expressed concern that the fire department's computer system and council's were different.

However, clerk-treasurer

Glen Madill said the two systems would be made compatible in the future.

He said the fire department's budget had been affected by an insurance increase.

After cutting the $2,000 from the budget, council eventually passed a fire department budget which stood at $43,100.

At the meeting council also adopted its 1996 municipal budget, with corresponding mill rates for the municipal, county and Board of Education levies.

The county mill rates increased by 0.97 per cent on the 1995 figure, with no increase in the general municipal figure. The Board of Education figure rose by 0.98 per cent.

Council's budget includes $79,675 for infrastructure projects, including new fencing around the pioneer cemetery, a new baseball diamond backstop and fencing and landscaping around the administration office, some of which have already been completed.

Madill said council's budget allowed for $31,503 to be put into the general reserve fund for future projects. Council's only debt is a loan on a works department loader.

Seminar focuses on community development

by JODY LINDBECK
Staff Reporter

Community economic development and how it relates specifically to Haliburton County was addressed at the first session of a three-part forum last week.

Organized by the Haliburton County Development Corporation's Community Economic Development Committee, the series of three seminars is being led by Dr. Christopher Bryant of Econotrends in St. Eugene.

Last week's seminar at Wiagamog, which attracted community leaders from all aspects of Highlands life, focused on community economic development, while this week's dealt with leadership.

The third session, to be held next week, will focus on strategic planning.

The first objective was to provide participants with an understanding of the basic principles of community economic development, to demonstrate how these principles can be applied to Haliburton County and to have participants evaluate the conditions for successful community economic development.

By the end, Dr. Bryant hopes participants would be able to identify the specific issues which are affecting Haliburton, such as the proposed restructuring of the county.

Dr. Bryant hopes people will realize they could not have control in the narrow sense, but by working together, they could have an influence on what

PLANNING FOR THE FUTURE

Dr. Christopher Bryant is giving a series of three seminars on community economic development, organized by Bryan Brown of the Haliburton County Development Corporation's Community Economic Development Committee occurred within the community.

He also believes seminars such as this one fill an important role for business people and community leaders, as they often lead people considering taking a new or different approach.

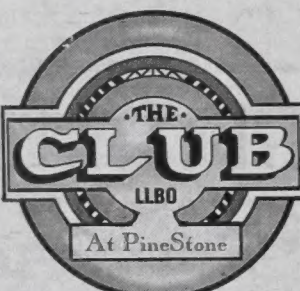

Bryan Brown said if Haliburton was to develop as a county, everyone had to work together.

Brown said Dr. Bryant has worked throughout Canada, in Europe and in the United States and found many communities were facing the same challenges. After taking with Dr. Bryant, he felt Haliburton was "taking a step in the right direction".

He hopes participants will go back to their organizations and act as leaders in discussions affecting the county.

control, with firefighters remaining on the scene overnight and most of Thursday as they searched for any remaining areas which could break out again. About three hectares of woods were burnt.

MNR fire prevention officer J.D. Bishop said a particular concern for the firefighters at this time of the year was wind.

He said while most mornings were quite calm, the afternoons could become quite windy.

Bishop said MNR fire crews and municipal firefighters have battled more than 100 wildfires in the past few weeks.

He said a recent spell of warm, dry weather has continued to dry out the forest fuels.

Bishop warned that the forest fire danger rating is extreme.

He said no day burning is allowed. You must ensure that your camp fire is completely extinguished. Also make sure ashes from incinerators and barbecues are cold before they are discarded.

Bishop said burning brush and leaf piles this time of year is always risky. The largest fire so far this season burned out 100 hectares and losses have included fuel wood and a bunkie.

MNR staff are urging the public to heed the changes to the Forest Fire Prevention Act.

A fire may be started without a burning permit if conditions allow the fire to burn safely until extinguished and all necessary steps are taken to tend, control and extinguish the fire.

A person failing to burn safely can be held accountable.

You are entitled to burn piled wood, brush, leaves or wood by-products without a fire permit provided they meet all of the following conditions:

- the fire is ignited no sooner

- than two hours before sunset and extinguished no later than two hours after sunrise.

- only a single pile is burned as any one time.

- the pile is not more than two metres in diameter and less than two metres high.

- the fire is at least two metres from any flammable materials.

- you have tools or water adequate to contain the fire to the fire site.

- a responsible person tends the fire until it is extinguished.

You can burn wood, brush, leave or wood by-products in an incinerator, without a fire permit, provided:

- the incinerator is an enclosed device constructed entirely of non-combustible material.

- the incinerator is covered by a screen with a mesh size of not more than five millimetres.

- the incinerator is at least five metres from any forest or woodland.

- the incinerator is at least two metres from flammable material.

- a responsible person monitors the fire until it is extinguished.

You can burn areas of grass or leaves if:

- the fire is ignited no sooner than two hours before sunset and extinguished no later than two hours after sunrise.

- the total area to be burned does not exceed one hectare.

- the flaming edge of the fire does not exceed 20 metres

- the person tending the fire has tools or water adequate to contain the fire to the fire site.

- a responsible person tends the fire.

A DANGEROUS TIME: After a fire in a make-shift incinerator spread to nearby bush at Black Lake in Lutterworth, Jim Watson and other firefighters with the Haliburton MNR's fire station were called to put out the fire and make sure it didn't spread. Here he checks for hot spots.

Birthstone: Pearl

Flower: Rose

For centuries the pearl has been a mark of distinction, wealth and power. Pearls were treasured in China as early as 3000 B.C. and they are mentioned in the Talmud and the Bible. The pearl is the only gem that nature creates in the sea. Ranging in colour from delicate rose white to black, all pearls are formed within the bodies of a few varieties of shellfish. Pearls symbolize health, vitality, truth and beauty. They are found principally in the Persian Gulf, Australia, the South Seas, Panama and Venezuela.

Hold the line on phone fraud by hanging up

by PETER DOWNS
Staff Reporter

One of the best ways to avoid being ripped off through phone fraud, say police, is also the easiest — simply hang-up.

"If you sit and listen to that phone, they will eventually sucker you in. There's no two ways about it," Minden OPP

Constable Ron Buchanan warned members of the audience at last Tuesday's annual general meeting of Haliburton County Home Support Services.

Many of the phony telemarketers' ploys are cleverly disguised as legitimate surveys so it is not always easy to know if the caller you're speaking to is a fake.

But often the gall of the scam artists will overcome their guile and they will give themselves away.

Const. Buchanan mentioned a phony call he received himself over the May long weekend from someone claiming to represent Stats Canada.

"Now this is the long weekend on a Saturday evening — what's the federal government doing working then?"

Personal questions about bank accounts and credits cards are another sure giveaway of a scam, he warned.

They're also a good sign to hang up.

Or better yet, said Buchanan, put the scam artist on hold for a while first and hit him where it's going to hurt them the most — the bank book.

"One of the things you can do is just say, 'Can you hold on for a minute my uncle's at the door'. Put the phone down and leave it there for about 20 minutes. These people are calling long distance so it's going to cost them a fortune. They won't call you back."

Another rule of thumb to avoid being ripped off is that any real prize shouldn't cost the recipient a cent.

Most phone and mail scams lure people into paying a phony "gift tax" or shipping and handling fee with the promise of a "free" car, trip or cash.

Const. Buchanan cited a typical case that involved a Wilberforce woman who was told she had won a new car. All she had to do was forward a certified cheque for $3,700 in freight, GST and other delivery charges to the phony company involved.

After she sent her money off by courier, she received another call from the scam artist saying the phantom car was stuck at the border in Detroit and officials there needed her payment right away to get the car over the border.

In order to get the car, she would have to send another certified cheque directly to them and, when it was received, the scam artist said he would rip up the first cheque.

That's when she called the Minden OPP. But by the time she had caught on to the scam, she was already out $3,700. And there was no hope of retrieving the lost money.

Through efforts such as Project Phonebusters, Const. Buchanan said the OPP and the RCMP are making some headway against phone scams.

But still the best defence against being targeted is to cut off any suspicious callers before they have the time to draw you into their trap.

Anyone who's received a suspicious call should contact Project Phonebusters at Box 686, North Bay, Ont., P1B 3B9, (705) 495-8501.

CPR is a life saver as Tory Hill man learns

Had he found the washroom, when he passed out chances are he wouldn't have been found until it was too late, she says.

The aunt of the Pizza Hut's manager, Shannon Wilson, saw Plante collapse and alerted her niece, who started CPR. Exhausted after a few rounds, Wilson was relieved when Hagerman asked if she wanted him to take over. By this time, Plante's face was blue, which meant his air passage was blocked. He wasn't breathing.

Without much time to think about what he was doing, Hagerman says "something takes over.. It was just this determination. I thought he was dead but I wasn't going to lose him."

Finally, after a few more rotations of chest palpitation and mouth-to-mouth resuscitation, Plante threw up. Hagerman continued with the CPR and Plante was beginning to breath on his own when the ambulance arrived.

"You lose track of time," Hagerman says, but it's believed Plante was without oxygen for five minutes. Much longer, and he would have died.

In a flurry of activity, the attendants loaded Plante in the ambulance and took him and his distraught wife to Ross Memorial Hospital.

a procedure to clear his lungs.

"If it hadn't been for Shawn, my father would have died," Lenart says. "Shawn brought him back. What can you say? Shawn will always be in our lives. My father is such a precious man and if it's for a few days or a few years more my family has with him, it was Shawn who gave us back a chance for more time. That's a priceless gift."

For his part, Hagerman was still in a bit of shock, slowly realizing the magnitude of his actions. At the time, it was just "it's a guy's life, start blowing."

Of course, he soon wants to meet the Plantes under more favourable circumstances.

"When Judy said 'you're part of our family now,' that really touched me," he says.

His hope is more people sign up for a CPR course, because as he's just discovered, it really can save someone's life.

"It was Shawn who gave us back a chance for more time with my father. That's a priceless gift."

ing there, messy and bewildered — and hungry. Not knowing what else to do, he sat down and had his pizza with other people who were there from Haliburton (including a Minden teenager who had just taken the CPR course.) With a bit more time to spare before his appointment, Hagerman went to the hospital to see how his "patient" was doing.

"My mom asked 'what can I do for you?' and Shawn said 'learn CPR,'" says Lenart, who will now make sure she gets her own recertification.

After a few hours, her father was feeling much better and on Friday was doing quite well recuperating from

A COURSE WELL TAKEN

Shawn Hagerman, who sells Mutual Life life insurance, is glad he listened well when Cathy Salvatori taught his CPR refresher course. He used CPR to help save Lucien Plante's life in a Lindsay restaurant.

Small hospitals, big responsibilities

IN THE INFORMAL get-together after the transfer of ownership of the local hospitals on Friday, Sister Hilda Maloney made an interesting observation. She said she had recently returned from a trip to Africa, and the poverty and the strength she saw there made her realize that here in Canada we have very little to complain about. No matter how much we bewail budget cuts, service reductions and tough financial decisions, we have life easy. We live in a country with such richness and her experience in Africa allowed her to see it through new eyes.

She also said there is always hope. Let's just hope she mixes that with a few prayers for Haliburton County now that ownership of the hospitals has been transferred to a local board.

On the one hand, the transfer from St. Joseph's Health Centre to the Haliburton Highlands Health Services board is a marvellous step forward. It means local people will be making decisions about the services which directly touch their lives, and that is an admirable feat.

But local ownership also means there will be no one to blame but ourselves if things don't work out the way we want them to. In recent years, it's been all too easy to forget that St. Joseph's was our guardian angel, taking over ownership from the Red Cross when no one else wanted such small hospitals so far away. HHHS chairman Paul Heffer was right in saying that without St. Joseph's stepping in to save the day, the hospitals would have been closed a long time ago.

In more recent years, that little bit of history has been forgotten as St. Joseph's has been bombarded with all sorts of accusations. At one time, there was even whispered speculation that this group of Catholic sisters were somehow cooking the books, making the local hospitals appear to be more expensive than "You survive no matter what," said Sister Hilda Maloney. "When you believe in your mission, you start with the notion that failure is not an option"

they really were. Whenever tough decisions had to be made, St. Joseph's was the fall guy, even though its board hated making those decisions. The Haliburton-Minden rivalry was brought to the Peterborough board room, often creating a tension which could explode at any wrong move.

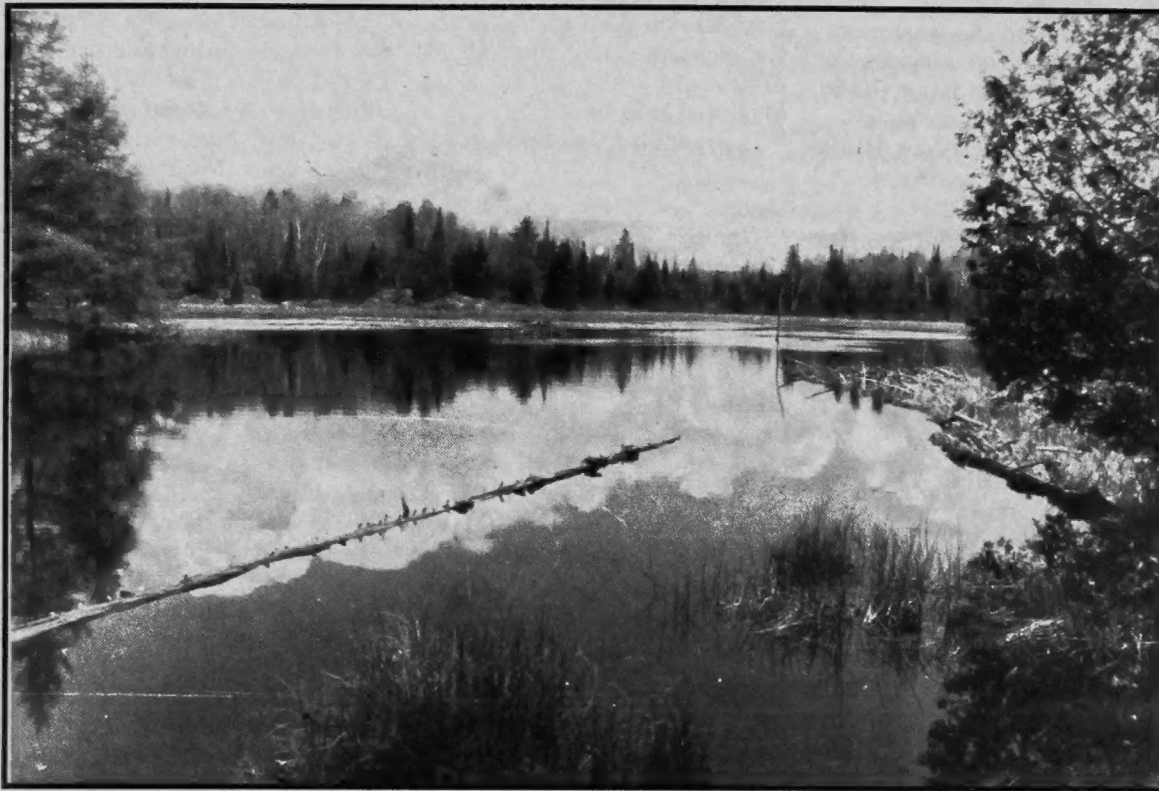

The Haliburton and Minden hospitals might be the smallest hospitals in Ontario, but they often were St. Joseph's biggest problem. So thanks to everyone at St. Joseph's who put up with us for all those years.

Well, it's said that we get the politicians we deserve, and in the months to come, we'll find out what sort of health services we deserve. Will the stress of balancing local expectations with financial restraints result in a renewed sense of co-operation, or will it divide the board into factions? Will people say that because they don't like the decisions they are being asked to make, they won't make any at all? Will the process be stalled irrevocably because of squabbling?

Board members have to be applauded for the enormous task they have just given themselves. But as Sister Hilda also commented on Friday, the people of Haliburton County are not only dreamers - they're workers, too. "You survive no matter what," she said. "When you believe in your mission, you start with the notion that failure is not an option."

It's too bad that Sister Hilda could not be on the health services board, to remind her fellow members about Africa, and how we should compare ourselves to others before we complain. We have a tremendous opportunity waiting for us around the corner. Everyone has to dig in and work together so we can negotiate all the curves and hills until we get there.

Letters to the Editor

A time of growth comes to an end

To the Editor:

Two hundred and thirty-one days ago Katimavik started up again for me and 230 other young adults. Young adults from all over the country signed up for reasons as diverse as the participants. White and black, French and English, women and men - in all these ways we differ but we all have one thing in common. We are all young adults searching for something to call our own, something that will make us happy and give us the things we need to survive on our own in the world.

So thus, Katimavik group 8 was put together and sent on the beginning of an adventure which would take us from Quebec to New Brunswick and finally to Ontario. Our group started with 11 and eventually we became eight. We are eight dynamic individuals who have made it through all the obstacles that have been thrown in our path. We have laughed and cried, had good times and bad, lost so much but gained even more.

Katimavik has been many experiences at once but a good majority of them are ones that occur as a group. We do everything as a group and thus we are forced to give up things, to make sacrifices, to learn to depend upon one another, to get along and to know that no matter how bad it gets we are here for one another. As hard as it was to leave home way back in October, it is equally, if not more, hard to now say goodbye to those whom I live with right now. Knowing that deep down we all care but may never see one another again. I think that these last few days of goodbyes have been some of the hardest on us because they are all leading up to saying it to one another.

Haliburton has shown us their best during our stay here, with the exception of the blackflies that is. We would like to say thanks to everyone who helped make our stay a memorable one. Special thanks to all the work sponsors and the members of the LKC, Local Katimavik Committee. It has been a wonderful rotation and I am glad that the computer at head office in Montreal sent little old me to Haliburton.

Justine (Tim) Krushelnicki,
Katimavik participant

Give youth a chance

To the Editor:

Being a youth, it is easy for me to say, "Being a youth is the hardest part of life." It also allows me to understand why.

At a time of life between childhood and maturity (as defined by some adult in a dictionary), youth are constantly facing new experiences and obstacles.

Besides the thousands of everyday decisions like whether or not you want to get out of bed (if you have one), what to wear to school (if you go), and what to eat for breakfast (if you eat it), youth also have to make decisions on much larger issues. Education (Is a high school diploma enough or do I need a degree that says I'm Art-istic?), employment (What am I going to do for the rest of my life?), physical appearance (Why are we all supposed to look like Cindy when only 5% of us get to?), and the enormous weight of peer pressure (Yeah, I guess one drag...sip...toke...line won't hurt.)

It blows my mind to think that through all of the pressure of dealing with life for the first time, youth are constantly degraded through discrimination.

Now realize that these things are happening every single day - not to visible minorities or women - but to youth.

The day must come when youth stand up and speak out for the respect they deserve.

Stereotypes of a young male misunderstood, and it's still all good!

Cory Ralston,
Katimavik Participant

Amalgamation is still a bad idea

The following letter was sent to MPP Chris Hodgsons.

Dear Minister Hodgson:

I write to you again concerning the proposed amalgamation of school boards and in particular the suggestion that Haliburton and Victoria Counties be joined as one school board. The fact that the original

On to the next event

IT IS HARD sometimes, being a stay-at-home parent. People ask "Do you work?" and when they hear what you do, they nod patiently and then move on to talk to someone with a "real" job.

It used to bug me but I find I don't get quite as defensive as I once did since I know now I'm doing the right thing for us, and that is all any of us can do. I try not to bore people with tales from the crib but sometimes things are just too good to keep inside and they pop out.

So it shouldn't come as a complete shock to any of us when I tell you how proud and happy I am that Sophie is now out of diapers. I know, those of you without kids are groaning but there are many of you who are saying, "Oh how liberating for you!" Just when I was beginning to wonder if my child would go to the prom in diapers, she decided that it was time to rid herself of that unnecessary rear padding. (Oh that it be that easy!)

For those of you who don't know, there comes a point when your child is walking, talking, etc., and the next logical step is that they use the porcelain facilities. This is often easier said than done and can have reasonably sane, normal people acting like circus performers to U.N. peace negotiators. Everyone has a theory on how to toilet training but I have found that as with everything, starting with the day they are born, the kids will do it when they are ready and not a moment before. No amount of pleading, admonishing or gummi bears will hasten the process.

With Max, I would sit for hours in the bathroom, reading stories and singing songs until the deed was done. Unfortunately, Siobhan was a newborn at the time and to this day, I feel as though I missed some of her important "firsts" because I was in the bathroom with Max. He still likes to contemplate life in there. Even once Max got it down during the day, we still had to have a safety diaper for nighttime for a few weeks.

Siobhan, on the other hand, just did the whole thing in one day with no coaxing or fanfare. Like most things she does, Vonnie just slid it in to her daily and nightly routine and that was all there was to it. Her only problem was and often still is, timing. When she says now she means it.

And there is Soph. I guess what was starting to irritate me about Sophie and the bathroom was that I felt I was being played for a fool. I know, you're saying how can one so young be so cunning and devious. Believe me, it happens. This is a girl who will turn on the computer, hand me a disc and ask to play like "Maxie". She will mimic Siobhan's highland dancing with surprising skill. But when asked to go to the bathroom she would turn on her heel and run. She wasn't even having little accidents, she simply wouldn't go at all. This went on for several weeks until I had finally had enough. We told her that we couldn't buy any more diapers and she had to go like everyone else. After a bit of whinging and whining, she agreed and that has been it ever since, day and night. And this girl can go for a long period of time. We recently had a trip to the east coast and Sophie hit every rest station between here and Digby. If it wasn't up to her standards she would say "Maybe next time" and sure enough, she'd last until then.

Delighting in these small pleasures may seem silly to some but I have a new take on it now. Many people who go out to work take great pride in discussing their job and the people with whom they share their day. Well this is my job and my kids are my co-workers. Our days don't end at five o'clock and we put in a lot of overtime together. There is much negotiating that goes on, as well as conflict resolution but so far, nobody has been downsized or fired (although there are days!). My little colleague of almost three years has, through diligence and perseverance received a large promotion. We at the Creelman Corp. are very proud of her. I think I'll treat her to a power lunch.

Pic of the Past

Many of our older readers will remember Cecil Scott's store in West Guilford. This picture, probably taken in 1935, shows Helen Sisson (later Helen Bryce) at the gas pump, which was hand operated. Our thanks to Ray "Scottie" Scott of Haliburton for sharing this picture of his former girlfriend with us.

The Dorset of The North

CANADIANS have often been characterized as a people huddling along the U.S. border, trying to keep warm by turning their backs to the winter blasts of the Great White North. And in fact 95% of us do live within 200 miles of the U.S. border, and in a geographic sense we are a two dimensional society, primarily east-west, with little north-south. Which is a pity. Flying over the unspoiled vastness of Arctic Canada gives one an appreciation of the true natural potential of our country, stripped of the politics, material preoccupations and divisiveness of its southern inhabitants.

I recently had the chance to go back to Baffin Island after a sixteen-year absence. Part of the Northwest Territories, Baffin Island peers down on northern Quebec from its Arctic perch. A sprinkling of Inuit communities dot the island with the largest settlement, Iqaluit (formerly Frobisher Bay), situated to the south east. I spent most of my time in Cape Dorset, a village of 1,000 located on the rocky, barren, south western coast of the island at 64 degrees latitude. At the time of my visit, late May, the community enjoys virtually 24 hours of daylight. The geese are flying, caribou are on the move, and in spite of freezing temperatures and lots of snow and ice, spring is in the air. Adults who are not working full time spend as much time 'on the land' as possible, engaging in traditional pursuits with modern implements.

The Inuit always enjoyed a very strong family structure, necessary for survival: one person alone stood no chance against the Arctic. These family values have remained largely intact in spite of cable TV, Interac and institutionalized welfare. A well-known centre of Inuit prints and carvings, Cape Dorset boasts a large number of well paid artists who would be millionaires in any southern society. In an example of trickle-down economics at work, however, most share their wealth freely with their extended family - brothers, sisters, parents and children. Thus no millionaires - but few paupers either, and this in spite of the collapse of the commercial seal market, a previous major source of income. Every adult feels a responsibility to watch over, protect, and if necessary scold, any child in the village. Parents sometimes 'loan' children to childless relatives who are then brought up as an integral part of their new family.

There are, of course, plenty of negative aspects of Inuit society - drugs, alcohol, suicide - but the people appear willing to meet these problems head on. Many communities have elected alcohol-monitoring committees with the power to decide who can and cannot buy booze. Although this would be viewed as an outrageous assault on personal freedom in the south, it appears to work in the Arctic, and their society is the better for it. There comes a point where personal freedom must give way to the welfare of the community as a whole.

The politicians are now getting ready for Nunavut, a new, mainly Inuit territory that is scheduled to split from the Dene dominated Mackenzie region of the Western N.W.T. in 1999. What impact this transition will have on the Inuit of Baffin Island remains to be seen. Their attachment to family and the land that defines them will no doubt give them the strength to overcome the challenges of the 21st Century.

Change would mean loss of autonomy

proposal has been changed, and we are now looking at a smaller area, does not lessen the concerns of teachers.

By amalgamating with Victoria County we will lose our autonomy and the opportunity to be as involved in decision making. People feel that they now have a voice, they know who is making the decisions and they are an extension of the Haliburton Board office. This situation increases the chances of a productive working environment and when you have employees who feel involved, you create a better education system.

Change is a part of education and a teacher's daily life. Some change is not for the best and we feel that this amalgamation will leave us isolated. Other issues of concern are distances, debt load, programming, local needs, start-up costs and communication.

To suggest that significant funds will be saved by this amalgamation is questionable. It also appears, according to preliminary calculations, that taxpayers in Haliburton County will have a significant tax increase in the neighbourhood of 7%.

HHSS ranks 3rd at track meet

Last Thursday, 36 HHSS track and field athletes made the trek to Ottawa to compete in the Eastern Ontario track and field championships. When the dust has settled, Haliburton Highlands Secondary School, one of the smallest schools represented, had placed third amongst 150 schools; 19 young men and women qualified to compete in this week's OFSAA championships in Kitchener.

While track and field is primarily an individual sport, the team spirit embodied by this year's contingent of HHSS student athletes has been remarkable. Throughout the day, the Terry Fox Complex resounded from the enthusiastic vocal support of Haliburton teammates cheering each other on. Moreover the senior students took the younger Grade 9 and 10 students under their wings and demonstrated, through example, the necessary physical training and mental preparation needed to compete at higher levels.

Team spirit was also reflected in the results. Three relay teams qualified for OFSAA. The senior boys, relay team, comprised of Mike Bradley, Scott Whittaker, Bill Koz and Tim Stouffer, ran a superb race and earned a well-deserved victory. The midget girls, team, consisting of Amy Brandon, Meghan Kennedy, Stephanie Ratz and Katie OFSSAA BOUND: Katie Campbell, centre, takes the midget girls' 100-metre race with a winning time of 13:06. She also placed second in 80m hurdles and first in the 300m hurdles. She qualified for OFSSAA in all three events. Photos on page 12 and 13 were taken by Robin Morris, publisher of The Chesterville Record.

Campbell, and the open girls' 4X400 team, which includes Campbell, Amanda Duncombe, Amy Wood, and Anna Tomlinson, will also be strong contenders at the provincial championships.

While the vast majority of the 36 HHSS competitors turned in personal bests at the regional championships, several individual performances stood out. Readers who have followed the features of this year's track and field team will not be surprised by the names.

Anna Tomlinson, capping off an outstanding five-year record at HHSS, qualified with strong performances in the triple jump and discus events. Discus coach, Walt Tose, was very impressed with Anna's poise and competitiveness as once again she responded to the pressure to throw a personal best 32.60 in the discus on her sixth and final throw.

Stephanie Ratz ran perhaps the most courageous race of the day capturing Mike Bradley, third from right, wins the Junior Boys' 100m with a time of 11:27. He came in second in the 200m with a time of 22.75. He will race in both events at the OFSSAA finals this week.

the bronze in the 3000 metre run for midget girls. What is most impressive was the fact that Stephanie shaved off 42 seconds from her previous personal best - running an impressive 11 minutes, 18 seconds. While small in stature, Stephanie's heart and desire are second to none.

Katie Campbell, the most talented track athlete to compete for HHSS since Leslie Tashlin, qualified for OFSAA in all five of her events. Katie ran in heats, finals and relays a total of eight races. After placing second in a very close 80 metre spring hurdles final, Katie ran to a victory in the 80 metre run and the 300 metre hurdles, the latter with a 47.0 time. As impressive was Katie's commitment to her teammates, running very strong relay legs to enable both relays to qualify. Campbell will be a strong medal contender at OFSAA.

In his fifth year at HHSS, Travis Willison has blossomed into a strong performer. Willison's competitive spirit and hurdling ability qualified him for both hurdle runs while his pole vault of 3.70 metres reflected a strong recovery from a dangerous fall in the pole vault only a week ago.

Sprint coach Tim Davies was well satisfied with the sprint team's performance in Ottawa. Davies was particularly pleased with Mike Bradley's 100 metre victory and 200 metre second place showing. Bradley, HHSS' record-setting tailback on the gridiron, suffered a knee injury in last November's COSSA football championship. Surgery and intensive therapy have returned Bradley to top form. In an age when sport, even high school sport, is tainted by the use of performance enhancing drugs and cheating, Bradley's dedication to self-improvement through strength, training has been the result of hundreds of hours of work in the gym. His work ethic has been an inspiration to the younger sprinters on the team.

This week's OFSAA track and field championship is the largest high school meet in North America, bringing together over 2500 competitors from throughout Ontario. HHSS will be well represented by a dedicated group of athletes who will be fine ambassadors for their school and their community.

The following are the athletes who placed in the top six at Eastern Regionals, and will advance to all-Ontario.

Kate Campbell - 80 M.

Bantam Orioles get flying start with 2 wins

The Bantam edition of the Orioles teams - sponsored by Sid Stamp fuels Ltd. - have jumped out of the starting gate on their competition, recording two decisive victories. This year's team brings together players from last year's PeeWee league championship club - Jamie Johnston, Bobby Hebert, Jimmy Hughes, Justin MacDonald, Stuart English and Brian Mulholland; coupled with returning veterans from the 'Crunch League' - Mike Morissette, Greg Forgrave, and Jessie Sterberg and solid Oriole veterans Joy Mole and Matt Reid. Outside of the above cast of players are newcomers, Greg Luck, Adam Durkin and Brendan Reynolds. Early indications would lead most observers to quickly recognize the impact these three rookies will have on their team and the league.

The Bantam Orioles opened the season at home, boasting an enviable record, having a perfect record over the competition dating back over the last two seasons. Nestleton, a new entry in the league proved to be a formidable adversary as the Orioles battled in the bottom of the last inning to score three runs, edging the visitors by a 8 to 7 score. The winning run was scored on a ball lined into the left field corner off the bat of Matt Reid. Honourable mention goes to Greg Forgrave who provided the O's with two strong innings of shut-out ball.

The second game of the season took the Orioles to Bobcaygeon, where over the years the O's have had to play at top form to be successful. This game started true to form as the two teams were knotted at one after two complete innings. However, the Oriole bats broke the game open in the fourth and fifth inning, scoring three runs and five runs respectively, cruising to a 9 to 2 win. The big hit for the O's came off the bat of Matt Reid, clubbing a two run homer in the fifth. Once again the Orioles received strong pitching from Greg Forgrave and Jimmy Hughes.

HEADING HOME: Kevin Sisson and Debbie Stinson round the bases during Monday night mixed lob ball after Sisson hit a homer.

Summer means more hockey for eager players

When most other kids their age are cooling off with a swim this summer, three young Haliburton County athletes will still be sweating it out on the ice playing summer hockey.

But Grade 4 students Jeremy Moynes, Josh Brown and Terry Bannon aren't bothered about missing the occasional dip in the lake.

It's a trade-off they're glad to make to test their talents on a highly competitive hockey club.

And as Terry points out, after the game they can always go for a swim in the pool back at the one of the many hotels they get to stay in as their team travels across Ontario.

The three friends, who play together on the same team in Haliburton, were picked to play on the Central Ontario Selects. Josh and Jeremy attend J. Douglas Hodgson Elementary School, while Terry goes to Wilberforce.

The level of competition on the Major Novice team is higher than can be found in local house league clubs.

That means the three have to work harder to earn ice time, but it gives them a great chance to pick their skills up a couple notches.

"It's really fast hockey," said Terry. "As soon as I go behind the net the other players are right on me like bugs."

Terry and Josh, also a defence-man, are playing on the team for their first season.

But Jeremy, a goalie, is putting in his second season with the Selects.

Usually the team plays two or three games a week, most of them a couple hours out of town.

But once it's game time, the many hours spent travelling and the long practices are worth it, they say.

And when the hockey season finally ends in July, there's still lot's of summer left before school starts in September.

Jeremy Moynes, left, and Josh Brown don't mind missing out on some of the summer fun other kids will soon enjoy -- they're happy to be playing summer hockey on a highly competitive team.

Baseball Athletics shoot down Orioles

The Orioles and the Athletics squared off in the first game of the night last Tuesday. These two teams were meeting for the first time this season. There was some good pitching, hitting and defence by both teams.

The first two innings were close with the Athletics coming out on top with a two nothing lead. Around this time, Orioles assistant coach Andrew Burtch started to sweat as he had predicted a win for his team. Meanwhile, the As coach Bill Hutson was relaxing because he had also predicted the win.

In the third inning the game began to slip away for the Os when the As opened up an eight nothing lead. This young Oriole team wouldn't give up though as they answered back with four runs in the fourth inning. Next time the As came up to bat they scored another four runs to round out the scoring at 12 to 4 for the As.

This was a game that saw many different pitchers, all with their own specialties, and some trying for the very first time. Though the score was not close, the effort by all was super.

HHSS feels squeeze as enrollment rises

by PETER DOWNS
Staff Reporter

Growing enrollment is putting a space squeeze on Haliburton's high school.

Administrators estimate the school's student population will rise by about 60 next fall, adding two more classes of kids for every period of the day.

But the school, which has seen its expansion plans frozen by the province under a one-year building moratorium, has no vacant classrooms.

Trustees put on hold a proposal to move a portable from Gooderham Public School to HHSS to give administrators time to speak with high school principal Gary Brohman about other options to accommodate his school's growing numbers.

Glamorgan trustee Craig Pettit said the portable is valuable to teachers at the Gooderham school, where it is used as a special education room, indoor activity space and storage area.

Director of education Brad

Saunders said it may be possible — though a less than perfect solution — to hold some lessons in the high school's cafeteria, rather than taking the portable from Gooderham.

Trustees discussed converting the board-owned house adjacent to the high school into a classroom, but ruled it out because of the expense involved.

They also said it would be too costly to buy a new portable, particularly when the board is hoping to go forward with expansion plans that would eliminate the need for portables on the property.

It could cost as much as $5,000 to move the portable from Gooderham to HHSS, said business head Jim Bradley.

Trustees will make a decision on the proposal at their June meeting.

Cap confirmed

The board has received official word from the province that a planned funding cut of $1.2-million will be capped at roughly $325,000.

Education Minister John Snobelen recently denied in the Ontario Legislature that he had cut "a special deal" with Haliburton to lessen the severity of its reduction.

Days later, he turned around and announced relief for 27 small boards, including Haliburton's, that would see their funding reduced by a maximum of 15 per cent of the previous year's transfer payment or 3 per cent of their total budget, whichever was less.

Katimavik ends as new ventures begin

by TARA MORRA
St. Catharines, Ontario
Katimavik participant

As June 5th approaches participants in Katimavik group #8 will set out on their own to follow individual paths. After seven and a half months of group life it is time for Katimavik participants to say goodbye to each other and develop strategies for the future.

Group #8 has been staying in Haliburton since March 20 on Highway 121. Haliburton has been a great experience to the participants and they would like to express their sincere thanks to the community for all their wonderful kindness and support.

Katimavik volunteered services to Victoria Street Elementary School, Wilberforce Elementary School, Minden Township, Rails' End Gallery, Women's Emergency House, CHACE and Sherborne Township. In return they received wonderful experience and self satisfaction.

The eight participants, Mark Burney, Pascal Goineau, Justine Krushelnicki, Tara Morra, Cory Ralston, Yvonne Sagon, Scott Wales and Nicole Wasurchuk will miss Haliburton's hospitality as they are always recognized in the community.

The Echo has been tremendously kind to allow group #8 to inform the community of upcoming activities and events.

Many special thanks to the local CKL members for all their hard work and involvement in Katimavik. All the participants are grateful to have the opportunity to become part of Haliburton and participate in many social events.

Katimavik is a program that was discontinued ten years ago but brought back a year ago. Each participant gave a sense of open mindedness, generosity and the desire to learn and like challenges.

When the program began each person came not knowing what to expect and who they would be spending their next seven and a half months with. In a short period of time each participant began to go beyond their limits, think of others and experience all aspects of group life.

Haliburton leaves a lot of beautiful memories and unforgettable faces, and fills the participants' hearts with happiness.

All participants appreciate the devotion and dedication from their group leader Jonathan Varghese. He has made the experience very rewarding for everyone. Jonathan put a great deal of time and effort to ensure a great adventure.

As Yvonne Sagon says,

Volunteer covers great lengths to help

by PETER DOWNS
Staff Reporter

Art Jones has gone to great lengths to help others.

As a volunteer driver for Haliburton County Home Support Services, he has logged enough miles over the past five years to have travelled around the world fully once and then made it halfway around again.

But it wasn't the vast distances he has covered that prompted Home Support to name Jones this year's "Outstanding Volunteer."

It was the small but important steps he has taken to show others he cares.

"He has patiently waited at hospitals for clients in the midst of legions of tests and at airports for delayed flights. He has lifted wheelchairs and consoled loved ones. The only time he gets upset is when the co-ordinator of the program has to explain directions in left and right instead of east and west," Marilyn Pennycooke told the audience at Home Support's annual general meeting last Tuesday.

She said Jones is popular with clients, who remember him for his kindness and the "beautiful music" he plays on car trips.

Others asked specifically for a ride from the man with "the lovely big dog" that used to accompany him on journeys.

Since becoming a volunteer driver in April, 1991, Pennycooke said Jones has "gone around the world for Home Support," driving 68,659 kilometres — far more than the earth's equatorial circumference of 40,000 kilometres.

In a brief speech, an emotional Jones said driving for Home Support helped him cope following his wife's death.

"If I didn't have Home Support to fall back on I don't know what I'd do," he said.

Home Support transportation co-ordinator Marilyn Pennycooke presents Art Jones with a certificate honouring him as the organization's Outstanding Volunteer.

Health unit offers grants

The Haliburton, Kawartha, and Pine Ridge District Health Council will be accepting proposals for its Health Community Grant Program. These grants are available to groups with a non-profit sponsor, who require funding for a project which will encourage individual and community health.

The grants will be used to help communities identify their health needs and plan and implement programs to meet these needs. A full range of issues that affect health and exhibit collaboration would be eligible. Grants to a maximum of $15,000 will be considered.

Ministry of Health proposal packages including criteria and expenditure guidelines are available by contacting Joni White at the District Health Council at (705) 748-2992. Proposals must be submitted prior to September 15, 1996.

Haliburton area lake levels drop slightly

The Haliburton lakes have declined quickly from last week's level and now average 97.5%. Flow reductions are underway on them aimed at holding the lakes near the normal 96% for this time of year.

Along the Kawarthas only a small surplus remains with them now at about 106% of their total range. This has dropped back from about 120% on May 21.

Otonabee River flow was still about 200 cubic meters per second this morning (May 28). Reductions will be made today and tomorrow to get this down to about 120 cubic meters per second. This allowed reopening for navigation on Thursday, May 30. Summer flows get down to about 17 cubic meters per second in dry conditions.

Kids can get free plane rides on weekend in Stanhope

by MARTHA PERKINS
Editor

Almost a century ago, Wilbur and Orville Wright dreamed of being able to fly. Although the aviation industry has come a long way since then, one thing hasn't changed... children's dreams of one day being able to take to the skies.

To celebrate the Wrights' first flight and to let children know this dream is possible, a group of local pilots are once again taking part in the Young Eagles program. This Saturday and Sunday, they will take children aged 8 to 17 for a bird's eye view of the Highlands.

Kids will get a free 15-minute flight and all they have to do is show up with a parent or guardian to register them. They'll be given a brief "tour" of a plane's cockpit and then go for a ride.

The pilots are donating their time, volunteers are helping with the paperwork and the municipality of Stanhope has offered the gas at cost.

"The view is sensational," says one of the volunteer pilots, Bob Chambers. "With the lakes and cottages, it's remarkable."

"I wish they were doing it when I was a kid," says fellow pilot Brent Walker. "I used to hang around the airport and beg."

For most pilots, the joy of flying is the feeling of freedom. The skies are one of the last truly open frontiers on this planet. However, they also realize - through personal experience, unfortunately - that flying is an expensive pastime.

"If God had meant man to fly He would have given him a lot more money," Chambers smiles wryly.

Since the cost often inhibits young people from getting involved, the Young Eagles program was seen as a solution. Spearheaded by the Experimental Aircraft Association, Young Eagles' goal is to cultivate an interest in aviation among young people, says local organizer Barry Hart. The goal is to take 1 million kids on a free flight by the year 2003, the 100th anniversary of the Wright brothers' achievement.

So far, 200,000 kids worldwide have taken part, thanks to the generosity of 13,000 pilots. This is the Stanhope Airport's third year of involvement. In the first two years, 275 kids have seen the Highlands from high above the trees. "Most of the kids think it's amazing," Hart says.

Participants are registered in what will become the world's largest log book. They'll also receive two free copies of Youth Aviation magazine. Perfect Prints will take pictures, which can be purchased, of the young flyers.

The local pilots prefer to take kids who have never taken part in Young Eagles before, but they will take past participants as well.

The flight schedule is any time between 9 a.m. and 3 p.m. on June 8 and 9, weather permitting.

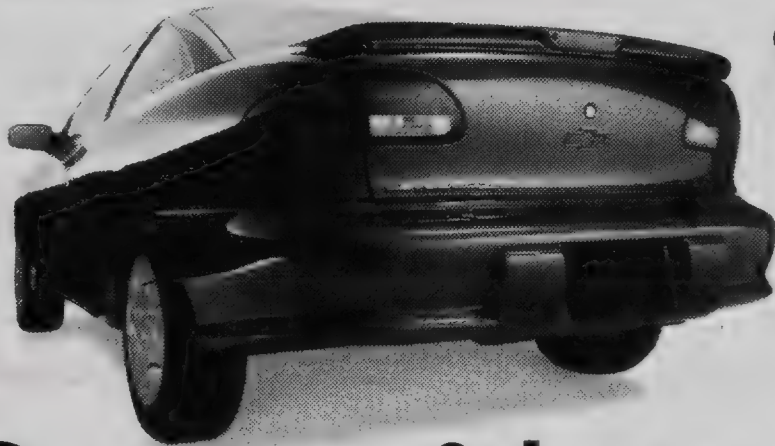

COME FLY WITH US:
On June 8 and 9, local pilots will take young people aged 8 to 17 for free airplane rides as part of the Young Eagles program at the Stanhope Airport. From left are Bob Chambers, Ray Oliver, Brent Walker, Barry Hart, airport manager Mike Carey and Bill Small.

Goose Buster!!

by PETER DOWNS
Staff Reporter

HE MAY JUST be a pup, but already in his short life, Woody the border collie is gaining a reputation in Haliburton as a champion goosebuster.

The eight-month-old newcomer to the geese police has almost single-"paw-edly" ridded Head Lake Park, Rotary Beach and the golf course at PineStone Resort of public enemy number one — the much-maligned Canada goose.

Of course, Woody has had a helping hand from owner Jim Elstone, who faithfully takes his partner out on his rounds every morning at 5:30 to scare away the geese.

The mere sight of the two coming over the bridge in their golf cart to the final three holes at PineStone is enough to scatter any geese that haven't quite got the message they aren't wanted in these parts.

After only two months on the job, Woody the goose dog appears to be the answer to a goeey, stinky, complicated problem that confounded local officials and turned a stroll in the park into a tiptoe through a messy mine field riddled with big green droppings.

Elstone bought Woody in a joint venture between the PineStone, the municipality of Dysart and his own company, Golf Green Industries, which handles the maintenance of Head Lake Park and Rotary Beach for Dysart.

Last spring and summer, it was next to impossible for visitors to find enough unsullied ground to spread out a blanket for a picnic at the park. Swimmers had to compete with geese for space on the beach. And golfers at PineStone got a lot more out of their cleats than just good traction.

But this year, thanks to young Woody, Haliburton's goose problem has been pretty well cooked.

By employing his breed's deeply ingrained instinct to herd, the fledgling goosebuster works his magic to round up geese and drive them away, Elstone explains.

Unlike ducks which forage for food in the water, Canada geese only eat on land, surviving mainly on a diet of grasses.

The big migratory birds have an incredibly fast metabolic rate which forces them to eat and excrete in copious quantities.

Similar to their dining habits — and much to the dismay of groundskeepers — geese will only clear their digestive systems on land, which they do an astounding once every four to six minutes during feeding hours.

Woody's job, which he appears to relish, is to force geese into the water and make sure they stay there until their metabolism drives them off to greener pastures where they can flush and fill to their stomach's content.

"Usually it takes about 20 or 30 minutes in the water and they take off," Elstone says.

Every now and then, some of the less educated geese return to try their luck at the golf course or the park at Head Lake.

But after several enforced dips under the steely-eyed supervision of Woody, most geese learn

See WOODY page 22

Have you noticed there are fewer geese leaving their calling cards in Haliburton? Thanks go to Woody the border collie and his owner, Jim Elstone, who have kept the park and PineStone golf course free of that nasty, smelly problem their lesson.

Elstone and Woody are "allowing" a pair of geese with five goslings at the golf course pond and another pair with goslings on Head Lake to remain where they are until the young are old enough to fly away safely.

But once the goslings gain their wings, they'll also gain a place on Woody's eviction list.

"All we're asking is that they go somewhere else to feed and do their business," says Elstone.

He doesn't mind that one of the new places geese have discovered is the back field of his own property on Barnum Lake, not too far from Head Lake Park or the PineStone.

"We're not destroying the birds, we're simply discouraging them"

"They can do what they like back there. That doesn't bother me at all."

Elstone is encouraged by Woody's early success at goosebusting and is glad to have found a humane way to tackle the problem.

"This process is not only safe, but it's also an environmentally sensitive one," he says. "We're not destroying the birds, we're simply discouraging them."

Woody was selected for Elstone and specially trained for his job policing geese by a Dundas, Ont. dog trainer, Marty McCann.

The friendly, 45-pounder is due to return soon for a refresher course to keep his skills sharp.

As Elstone runs his eager-to-please recruit through a series of commands for the benefit of an Echo reporter, two adult geese drop down into the pond fronting the final holes at PineStone in an act of almost brazen defiance only 15 feet from the dog.

Woody quickly looks over his shoulder at Elstone to direct the charge.

The order is issued and the mid-sized dog darts into action, running along the water's edge as the geese honk and paddle only slightly away.

"It almost seems as though they're protecting some young," Elstone says. "They're certainly acting very aggressively."

But Elstone knows there are no more young on the pond, other than the five goslings that have been granted squatters rights.

Woody bobs and weaves and runs light-footedly from side to side on the shoreline.

But the geese stubbornly remain.

Elstone takes out a little pistol that shoots a small cartridge, making a loud, whining noise that pierces the air. He holds a special permit from the Canadian Wildlife Service to use the noise-maker.

He and the dog and the geese all make their way around the edge of pond—the dog darting, the geese honking and Elstone occasionally firing the noise-maker—until they are on the opposite shore.

After 10 or 15 minutes, Woody takes what will be his final charge for this battle and the obstinate geese—driven by their insatiable appetites—fly off with a racket.

Woody earns some well-deserved attention as a reward from Elstone for his latest job well done.

And with the sound of the geese fading out over the horizon, the pair get in their golf cart and head off toward the office they share in triumph.

Camp's future a concern on Drag Lake

by JODY LINDBECK
Staff Reporter

The future of the Camp Scugog Northwood site on Drag Lake is set to be a major issue at the annual general meeting of the Drag Lake Property Owners Association.

The United Church had used the Drag Lake site, which was formerly Camp Illahee, for about four years. But not this year.

The property is owned by the Family Services Association of Metro Toronto and is up for sale. (It was on the market during the time it was used by the United Church.)

President of the Drag Lake Property Owners Association, Terry Buchkowsky, said his organization would like to see the site continued to be used as a holiday camp.

Buchkowsky said residents understood the property was zoned as commercial, which could allow for future development.

At the annual general meeting on June 30, ratepayers will be discussing what action to take.

Bob Christensen of the Family Services Association says that while his organization would prefer that the site continued to be used as a summer camp, it was not something they could control.

Christensen said the property, which features 4000 feet of shoreline, will not be used this summer.

He said the use of the site for Camp Scugog Northwoods by the United Church had always been understood to be a short-term venture.

Camp Scugog manager Dana Leahy said the camp has been moved back to the original Camp Scugog site, which has been undergoing renovations.

She said while the camp staff were sad to be leaving the Haliburton community, the church had not been in a position to buy the Drag Lake property, and instead made the decision to renovate the old camp site.

The first camp for low-income families at the newly-renovated Camp Scugog site will be held in July.

Leahy said camp staff had known at the end of last summer that they would not be returning to Drag Lake for this year.

Much of Canada's artistic talent began in rural areas – and is still found here

ART AND ME

Marion J. Hare

WHEN IT COMES to painters Ontario has to be one of the more blessed - lots of talent and loads of enthusiasm. A fine example is in evidence at the Rails' End Gallery and will remain there until late June. It is an exhibition of selected works of the East Central Ontario Art Association - Toronto to Ottawa. Only the 50 best are on view and they certainly demonstrate the talent. The fact that the members were willing to bring their works all this way indicates their enthusiasm.

The show is a juried one, which I think makes for more interesting viewing. Agree or disagree with the jury's selections, make your own choice. At the very least, if you enjoy perusing paintings, don't miss this opportunity to visit Haliburton Village's Gallery this month.

Ontario's abundance of creative talent emanates not only from the large metropolitan areas but from the towns and hamlets as well. I was struck by this when sitting in the Festival Theatre at Stratford last weekend and browsing through the actors' biographies while waiting for the play to begin. How very many began their illustrious careers in rural Canada and then went on to prestigious academies in both Canada and Britain before returning to delight and even awe their audiences.

How dedicated as youths these talented people must have been. Great dedication as well as a lot of luck, faith in oneself, and often a helping hand is needed early in such artistic careers when there is truly more promise than proof.

At this moment this helping hand is needed so that Loreena Rogers, who left our local high school last year to train for the stage, could continue her studies in England. This spring she auditioned at the renowned London Academy of Performing Arts (in England). Four hundred tried out for only 25 places in the two-year program.

Last week Loreena was notified that she was one of those 25. Unfortunately there is one almost insurmountable requirement. Loreena must guarantee her first and last semesters' fees by June 26. These amount to $7000.

Urgently required is a major sponsor or several sponsors grouping together to give Loreena the helping hand that may someday create an actress who rewards the public with moving performances. Government or other such foundation grants are unlikely for two reasons - too little time left to apply and besides most have already dispersed their shrinking funds for the year.

Anyone who might have names of possible sponsors to contact or any other suggestions for obtaining the funds PLEASE call Loreena's Mom, Roz Bagg, at 754-4861.

Minden W.I. "steals" Nature's secrets

by JEANNE SEARS

On a lovely May 15 afternoon, 12 members of Minden Women's Institute, at the Don Berry home, answered the roll call of "How we cope with the metric system." The articles for Fair Exhibit will be turned in at the next meeting. The planning meeting for programmes for 1996-97 will be June 6 at 10 a.m. at the home of President Jean Cox.

Bea Berry, convenor, then read an article on "Stealing Nature's Secrets" and how these may be used in new ways. This was very interesting and brought us much new information.

Our branch had convened East Victoria District Annual at Minden United Church on May 8. We all enjoyed hearing the students from A.S.P.S. giving their speeches and stories. The noon buffet was catered by our members and all enjoyed this District Annual meeting, the speakers and the other members.

Next meeting is at the United Church hall, Wednesday, June 19 and some district executive ladies are being invited. This is at 12 noon in the form of a pot luck and you need food and dishes.

Haliburton Hairdressing and staff would like to introduce LISA TOMLINSON

A day for celebrations

WEST GUILFORD

News

Eleanor Cooper
754-2388

May 25, 1996 will go down in the memories of many local people for various reasons, one of which was the celebration at home of Basle Cooper's birthday that afternoon when as many relatives and friends as could attend his party.

Another reason for my remembering the date is that I attended the 120th anniversary of my Prince of Wales public school in Barrie.

It seemed hundreds of former pupils poured through the doors, mingled, met, greeted, laughed and exclaimed over old records, pictures and memories, and to some extent got caught up on each other's lives.

Gerald Morrison's wedding to Barbara Smith was the crowning memory of the day, however, the Anglican ceremony having taken place at the United Church in Haliburton with the Rev. Christopher Greaves officiating.

Some very gifted and musical young people provided special choral work as part of the ceremony and at the reception afterwards as well, at the Guilford Centre.

Terry and Lisa Noble proved able and amusing M.C.'s for the evening.

The dancing and the bountiful buffet, the anecdotes and the beautiful Conrad Grable banner (the Waterloo college residence), all displayed and echoed the joy expressed by the bride and groom in reply to the speeches and good wishes of all present.

Guests were invited to return to the Perry Morrison home next day while gifts were opened by Gerald and Barb before they left on their honeymoon to a cottage and to Ottawa.

Sunday, May 26, was a special memorial service day for Petra Pequegnat at the Baptist Church. Her son, David and her daughter, Beth Chambers, arranged for and provided special music for the occasion.

Sarah Hutchinson of Eagle Lake played her flute to Beth's keyboard accompaniment. David played the organ music, Linda Benson, Darko Knezevic, Beth and I sang some favourite Pequegnat hymns and the Rev. Paul Benson preached on the life of service as epitomized in the story of Jesus washing the disciples' feet.

Relatives from Kearney, Muriel Laking, Frank and Bessie Mason were among the guests afterwards at David's house for the delicious lunch he provided.

Recent guests in the area include Cindy Foster and Mildred Cooper at the Greg Coopers, Steve and Brenda Cowie and family with Marilyn Gibbon, and Maizie and Ken Sheridan at Erma Sisson's.

The Eastern Star gathered to worship at St. Andrew's on Sunday afternoon, Worthy Matron and Worthy Patron being members of our congregation in the persons of Yvonne and Paul Johnson.

About twenty of the group augmented the usual numbers and were most welcome for the occasion. The Rev. Greaves commented on their works of charity which is a hallmark of this organization.

In the midst of the joy and celebration comes sadness as well.

Phoebe Paull is gone from us now, having spent the last weeks of her life in hospital in Haliburton, and having died on May 24, leaving children Theo and Neil Griffin and family, and Oswald Simms, to mourn her as well as her husband Ev Paull. Our sympathy goes to those who will miss her.

Our deep sympathy also goes to Tom Clifford of Lakeside Golf Course in the loss of his sister, Dorothy Linklater, who died unexpectedly.

Accountant ready to close the books

by MARTHA PERKINS
Editor

WHEN YOU END your career in an office overlooking a lake, in a building that bears your name, it usually means that you've spent a lot of time at your desk.

So after working long hours while his two sons were growing up, one of Gerry Dawson's retirement goals is to make up for lost time by having many visits with his grandchildren.

And as the invitation to his retirement tea on Friday says, the other goal is travel the world with his wife Barbara.

Dawson started what eventually became Dawson Gray Chartered Accountants back in 1959. As with any new business, the first years were incredibly busy. With time, more staff was added, and eventually their own office building was built on Haliburton's main street. The business has weathered all kinds of economic storms, but it is with pride that Dawson can look back on a very successful career.

Life has a way of coming full circle, and Dawson has always balanced a love for the county where he was born with a desire to expand his horizons, learning about other cultures and countries.

He was born on the family farm on Dawson Road in Stanhope, the youngest of eight children. When high school in Minden ended a Grade 12, he went to Peterborough for his final year. His trigonometry teacher was friends with someone who had an accounting firm in Toronto, and was always on the look out for bright young minds. Given his druthers, young Gerry would have studied science, but in those days, you could become an accountant by apprenticing for five years, and money was too tight for a university education.

In 1952, he started his apprenticeship with the Toronto firm, George A. Touche, which through a series of mergers is now Deloitte Touche. The pay was barely enough for a place to stay and three meals a day, but no one seemed to mind.

"We had a lot of fun," Dawson says. "We were all the same age and everyone was in the same boat so you made do. And we got very good practical experience."

Although Toronto was very different from the family farm, the city was still small and neighbourly and he quickly settled in. "It's good exposure," he says in retrospect. "It gives you an appreciation of what else is out there. If you've never had the opportunity to be involved in urban life, it's something everyone should experience." It helped when towards the end of his apprenticeship, in 1955, he met his future wife, Barbara, at a weekend camp for young people at Lake Couchiching. She had just finished high school and was about to train as a nurse at a Toronto hospital. They married in 1961 and have two married-with-children sons, Stephen and Jeffrey.

Two years before the wedding, however, Dawson was in Haliburton to visit his parents. He stopped for gas at Curry Motors before heading back to Toronto, and of course, he started to chat about his career. A few days later, his brother Cliff phoned from Haliburton. Ron Curry had phoned him to ask if Gerry would be interested in moving back to Haliburton to pick up the accounting practice of George Hughes, who had died that spring.

"Nothing ventured, nothing gained," says Dawson, who had few qualms of moving back home. "It was a challenge - the practice was virtually non-existent. I look back and wonder how I survived. But life was simpler in those days, too. Businesses were small, you did everything manually and typed everything in quadruplicate."

Looking out of his office window, with the view of Head Lake, he can almost see his house, which is hidden by the trees. He can drive home for lunch, avoid the Friday night pilgrimage of people who live in the city but yearn for the country, and still be only a few hours away from his sons and their new families. Who wouldn't want to live here?

The business expanded with the arrival of his nephew, David Gray, in 1969. Although related, what made the partnership work was their shared values - honesty, integrity, a willingness to work hard - and mutual respect. (In the intervening years, Roger Dart became a partner and after he began working for a city firm, Hugh Nichol became a partner a few years ago.)

Accounting has been a good career. "It's a science of fair measurement. Within the rules of law you may have different options and you can use those laws to your advantage - as long as you don't break the rules."

The local economy has had its ups and downs, but "in Haliburton County we've been fortunate because we never felt the excesses of the Depression or the excesses of the boom times." People have a way of making do.

He and his wife will get a different perspective of the Highlands now that he's retiring. Both of them have volunteered many hours for local organizations - he most notably for Community Living and she for the hospitals - and since they're both young and healthy, they're looking forward to not having as many time constraints when making holiday plans. After spending much of their life in Haliburton, it will be an even nicer place to come home to after their travels.

"It's good to just get away for a while," he says. "You can come back and appreciate we have our problems, but compared to what's out there, we're not so badly off."

If you would like to wish his retirement a bon voyage, Dawson Gray is hosting a retirement tea on Friday, June 7 from 2 to 4 at the Haliburton office.

Rhubarb Festival has everyone on the run

by RUTH STILL

A traditional marathon is 26 miles. A half marathon is 13 miles. As a new event at the Rhubarb Festival this year we are having a mini marathon of 5 km. or 13 miles.

The "Run for the Rhubarb" is open to all. It will begin out by Moose Woods. The course is ideal, slightly downhill into the village of Eagle Lake. For experienced runners a point-to-point run on this course is an opportunity to raise your personal best.

As in the longer marathons, these racers will line up to be first off the mark, (already there are some such committed racers coming from Ottawa and from Toronto). They should complete the race in approximately 14 1/2 minutes ready for the pancake breakfast awaiting all. The less experienced will, of course, have a longer time. The walkers should be in at 45 minutes.

Entry fee is $15. Prizes will be drawn because participation rather than speed is the object of the race.

Pre-registration would help the race organizers guesstimate food needed, and water for the drink pause. Course marshals will be on hand to regulate traffic.

So how have I suddenly become so knowledgeable about marathons? Because the manager of our race is a bona fide Boston Marathon 1996 participant and I interviewed him.

He can be spotted most nights running the 6 miles home from work, up Dover Spring Hill to his home on Portage Lake. This is the easy stuff. He counts on running 30 to 60 miles a week average. When preparing for a marathon. Sunday's run will be a minimum of 20 miles.

Now that the snow has melted, he is delighted to find such great practice tracks in Haliburton: ski-doo and cross country ski trails, the old railroad siding. He, and fellow runners Marcel and Marcus, are becoming familiar sights out for an evening's practice.

Ian and his wife moved here recently from Vancouver and have bought a home. The west coast rain seems to have been no deterrent to practice runs. There is usually a clearing of skies at about 6:00 p.m. Besides it's a generally moist atmosphere out there compared to our drenching rains that soak to the hide.

A year ago he competed in the Portland Marathon where his speed qualified him to enter this year's Boston Marathon.

Five days a week Ian Moorehouse can be found seated behind a desk at the C.I.B.C. in his role as Personal Banker', friendly, efficient. At 34, with average height and build he doesn't fit my image of the long limbed, spare fleshed, taut muscled distance runner, besides his job is sedentary.

NOTES TO THE CONSOLIDATED FINANCIAL STATEMENTS For The Year Ended December 31, 1995

- The 1995 Financial Statements consolidate the operations, assets and liabilities of the the County of Haliburton and its local boards and municipal enterprises as follows:
 - Hyland Crest Senior Citizens Home
 - Haliburton County Library Board
- The above data has been extracted from the audited 1995 Financial Statements of the County. Copies of the 1995 Financial Statements and the auditor's report thereon, are available at the County's Offices to any resident who wishes to review or analyze the financial operations of the County in greater detail.

Exposition focuses on information centres' role

The Haliburton County Information Centre Inc. participated in an exposition at Queen's Park to demonstrate a fully functional Information Centre. The focus was to demonstrate the wide variety of services and expertise provided by Information Centres to their communities.

Through the Association of Information Centres, a province-wide information data base was compiled using the information from all of the information centres across Ontario. This constitutes probably the most comprehensive and powerful resource tool available today.

MPP Chris Hodgson took time out of his busy schedule to attend the demonstration and to reaffirm his support to the Information Centre and these initiatives.

More than 40 MPPs made the effort to stop in and get a demonstration of the capabilities not only of the Information Data Base, but also of what it is capable of with the expertise available from the Information Centres staff.

Many of the MPPs made specific reference to the information centres in the statements read into Hansard acknowledging the valuable and cost-effective role the information centres have within the communities and the need to review funding for the centres in light of budget cutbacks.

ARMY CADET MONTH: 1996 marks the 25th anniversary of the Army Cadet League of Canada and the 117th anniversary of the Royal Canadian Army Cadets. Karin Aschenbrenner of Haliburton, centre foreground, was one of the cadets picked from Ontario, the other cadets were from across Canada, to travel to Parliament Hill in Ottawa for a group march.

Cadets put their best feet forward at annual inspection

On May 26, the 11th Annual Inspection of the 1129 Royal Canadian Army Cadet Corps took place in the Community Centre. Reviewing officer was Lieutenant Murray Rodd.

The Corps has been designed to provide the opportunity and encouragement to the youth of Canada to participate in purposeful and challenging activities. They had a busy year and are well deserving of their awards.

Also on May 26, the Ladies

Auxiliary took part in the Zone Convention in Woodville. This was a very interesting meeting following the parade to the cenotaph. Twelve Ladies Auxiliaries attended - there is always something new to learn.

The Haliburton Pipe Band led the parade.

On June 2, Lindsay hosted the Zone Drum Head Service and Branch 129 hoped for a good local turnout.

The general meeting will be on June 6 at the usual time. Attend if possible. June 8 the ladies will be busy at the Flea Market from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. at the Legion Hall. There is something for everyone and light lunch and snacks are available.

Animal races will be held on the 8th and 22nd of June in the club room at 3 p.m. and steak roll on June 29. Meat draws are every Friday from 4 p.m. to 6 p.m. The Zone Golf Tournament will be on June 15. I have no further details on this.

Our thoughts and prayers are with 12-year-old Cadet Lisa

Mitchell who has had a brain tumor removed and undergone some Chemo and is resting at home at this time.

The next meeting of the L.A. will be on June 24 in the form of a pot luck supper. There will be no meetings in July and August but will be busy catering.

Our lovely new baseball diamond is already in use. The children's and youth teams have held their registration, and are ready to go. If you missed registration and would like to play, contact Bill Shaw at 447-3281.

Anyone for mixed lob-ball? Vince Billings and Gary Freeman would like to get an "in-town" adult league going. This would be for fun and exercise - no fee, no uniform - but good company and good times! For more information, or to join

40 Years Experience

Isssss Minden going to the boas?

While one would certainly expect to confront a startled deer or moose, during a visit to the beautiful Haliburton Highlands, Summerfest '96, which takes place June 15 and 16, in Minden, will prove to be a heart-pounding alternative.

Creatures Exotic Reptile Show will be visiting the Highlands as part of the many attractions and events of Minden's largest summer festival, Summerfest '96. Dan Balch, owner and operator, has an extensive background in this exotic field, with a Bachelor of Science.

The show offers an exciting glimpse into the world of reptiles and many other exotic creatures unknown to these parts.

Chrissy (as in hissy), an 18 foot python, and Dan's constant companion, steals the show with her affectionate displays, or shall we say just the plain old urge to squeeze you.

This is a wonderful opportunity to come face to face with Chrissy and the wide variety of creatures, such as alligators, iguanas, monitors, African tree frogs, scorpions and boa constrictors and more.

The show will take place outdoors, along with the many other Summerfest activities, such as The Premier Craft and Collectibles Show. The Sportsman and Cottage Show, The Outdoor Farmer's Market and Flea Market (which has an automotive section), The Kinsmen Truck Pull/Show and Shine and The Historic Automobile Society Car Show, June 15 - 16, at the Minden Fairgrounds, Community Centre and Curling Club.

Seniors preparing for summer of suppers, socializing and sundaes

First of all, I'd like to introduce myself. I am a new resident, along with my wife, Lorraine. I worked for C.B.C. Radio and was a reporter for many years. For Ontario Hydro, I was Radio and TV editor for the last 22 years.

I feel privileged to have been asked to report Hyland Crest's activities, to the community through the Senior League column.

The residents enjoyed a Victoria Day celebration on May 24, complete with a supper barbecue, entertainment with the Grandfathers and at dark there was a nice display of fireworks.

Our thanks to the volunteers and staff who helped. Also the Lions Club of Minden and the Resident

SENIOR LEAGUE

Hyland Crest News

HORACE BROWN

Council for the donation of fire-works.

On Monday, we went on a bus trip to Furnace Falls. On the way back we stopped at Kawartha Dairy for some delicious ice cream.

On Wednesday, we had a discussion about ice cream sundaes and how they originated. Now ice cream is made with electricity and fast, but some think the old way of making it is still the best. Lovely Linda had the deliciousness served out by her and the wonderful ladies who helped. Everyone ate plentifully and well and came back for more of the truly delightful desserts. This was a most worthwhile day.

On Thursday, Minden Lions Club brought a lovely lunch and helped the folks celebrate birthdays in May. Lil Martin, Lucile Clark, Mary Eaton, Alice Rivers, Bea Tustin, May Mann, Harold Sawyer, Jean Taylor, Corrine Bonneville, Bea Britain.

The Coopers were here to entertain for Happy Hour on Friday afternoon and a good time was had by all, dancing and socializing.

Lots of interesting things coming up. June is the month Seniors take the crown.

400 IN MEMORIAM

BRADBURY, CLIFFORD - In loving memory of a dear husband and father who passed away May 31, 1995.
Although we smile and make no
fuss,
No one misses him more than us.
And when old times we oft' recall,
That's when we miss him most of all.
Sadly missed by loving wife
Margaret and family.

COOPER, LARRY - In loving memory of our dear son Larry who passed away June 7, 1995.
Our hearts still ache in sadness
And secret tears still flow.
What it meant to lose you
No one will ever know.
When the days are sad and lonely
And everything seems wrong,
I seem to hear you whisper,
'Cheer up and carry on.'
Each time I see your picture
You seem to smile and say,
'Don't worry, I'm only resting,
We'll meet again some day.'
Remembered and missed by Mom and Dad.

Memorial dedicated

by PHYLLIS BRISCOE
Dorset News

There was a very impressive ceremony at the Paint Lake Cemetery when a memorial was dedicated. Rev. Susan Manning and Father Tom Cunningham conducted the service. The event was well attended with many plants placed in the garden in memory of loved ones. The garden was established so that anyone may plant a flower in memoriam, so if you were unable to attend on Sunday you may still put in a plant. It is planned to hold an annual service.

A familiar sight around the village has disappeared. Wimpy finally succumbed to the ravages of time. He was in his 18th year and had been a faithful follower of his owner, post master John Clayton, in the Clayton store and later at the Post Office.

John had had him since he was a puppy, first in Denver. Then when John moved back to Dorset he brought Wimpy along, where he became well-known to the public in general. Wimpy is not only missed by John and his family but by everyone.

Kyla Woods is back in our midst after an extended vacation in other parts of the world. She spent three weeks in Hawaii. She came back to Vancouver where she spent a month and was shown all the points of interest so had a great time while there.

I guess a great many held tickets on the Dorset Lions draw for a hind quarter of beef but we didn't win, did we? The lucky ticket holder was Dee Alexander of Granite Landscaping.

A group of local ladies have returned from an interesting trip to the east coast. Millie McEachern, her sister Muriel Dunlop, her daughters Ruth Ross and Penny Drebbitt and her cousin, Irene Clayton travelled by motor home for several weeks seeing the sights in P.E.I., Nova Scotia, New Brunswick and Quebec.

Plant and paint for historic house

WILBERFORCE

News

Hilda Clark

Good weather on Saturday, June 8 is greatly hoped for by the Heritage Guild for the "Painting and Planting Bee" at the Outpost Historic House and grounds.

The inside, from top to cellar, has already been cleaned. The outside is to be freshened up with a new coat of paint. The flower bed has been cultivated and awaits more donations of plants. Both perennials and annuals would greatly appreciated. The Bee begins at 10 a.m. Refreshments will be available for workers. Even if you can't paint or plant, drop by for a chat and encourage the helpers. Further information at 448-2018 or 2211. Rain date is June 15.

Several members of the Ladies Auxiliary of Branch 624 of the Canadian Legion attended the zone meeting at Coe Hill on Sunday, May 26.

Reg Schofield, a veteran of World War II, who endured four years in a prisoner-of-war camp in Hong Kong, is in Sunnybrook Hospital in Toronto. His friends and neighbours miss him and wish him improvement in his treatment program.

As the school year nears its busy end, teachers complete their programs, and children anticipate report cards, many regular activities continue.

Thank you to Miss Barb Taylor for reporting the Students-of-the-week. They are: From Sr. Kindergarten - Nikole Watson can read an entire book; Philip Austin who is a new student in Grade 1/2 has adjusted well to routines of the class.

Kanan Quibell in Grade 3/4 has shown good cooperation, and Lee Fisher, also new to the school, has adjusted to his situation. Brandon Logan in Grade 4/5 has shown excellent athletic skills, while in 5/6 dedication, hard work and a positive attitude has won Kate Foulds the class honour this week.

St. Margaret's Bread & Soup Night turned into a gourmet's delight.

With seven different pots of soup and breads galore to sample, participants hardly touched the dessert loaves that surely did fit the bread category. With Rev. Christopher Greaves on guitar and Elaine Tallman at the organ, a fine hour of music and song nourished the spirit.
